The President is after Mr. Forney, the Secretary of the Senate and editor of the Press and Chronicle. His counsel will probably call the attention of the court, this week to the fact that an official of the court, its Secretary, publishes daily from two to five columns in favor of the conviction of the President. They will insist that no judicial body of any degree would permit its clerk to urge the conviction of a prisoner on trial.

The experiments which have been made in St. Louis during the past few months in reducing Iron Mountain ore to pig metal, with what is known as Big Muddy coal, reached a most successful result Friday night, at the furnace just completed at Carondelet, six miles below that city. The final trial was made in presence of a number of experts, capitalists and iron men, all of whom were highly pleased, and say the iron produced is of the first quality. The Big Muddy coal contains less sulphur than any other known, and metal can be made with it for less than twenty dollars per ton.

WASHINGTON, April 13. The reading of the Journal was dis The reading of the pensed with.

The Chief Justice stated the question before the Court to be on the motion allowing as many of the Managers and counsel to participate in the final debate as may wish to do so.

Mr. Sumner offered an amendment, that no further postponement should was made.

Mr. Stanbery said the counsel for the defence were strongly opposed to the limitation of time in the final argument.
Mr. Butler intimated that he would not take advantage of the clause to speak.

Mr. Evarts said the result of the proposition as it now stood, would give six Managers against four of the counsel on closing the argument.

Mr. Drake raised the point of order that the Senate, sitting as a court, could not take such action. The point was overruled.

The vote was then taked resulting 33 to 10. So the rule remains unchanged.

Examination of General Sherman re-sumed-Mr. Stanberry asked if "after the restoration of Mr. Stanton, did you form an opinion as to the desirability or as to the good of the service of the office of Secretary of War being filled by any other than Stanton, if so, did Objections made and argued by Mr. ion of intent was of vital importan that they did not offer this testimony as an abstract opinion, but as the judg ment formed and expressed by the second officer in the service for its good. He referred to the relations man believed a change should be made in the interest of the President. He appealed earnestly to the Senate for the sake of justice to admit the evi-

Johnson's question, "Have you answer the sake of justice to admit the evidence.

Mr. Buller rejoined, that by introducing irrelevant testimony, a law would be broken to defend a breaking of law. He said there would be not limit to the inquiries which would be put to the witness; the managers could ask him if he had a quarrel with Stanton; if that influenced his decision; so that the field would be boundless. It is seemed to be assumed by the other side that the evil intent must be proved by something the President had said, whereas it was proved by his act in breaking the act; it was also immaterial, whether Stanton was a fit man or not to be retained in office; evil could not be done that good might come. Referring to a remark of Mr. Stanbery, that Mr. Stanton did not take part in the Cabinet councils, he said there was no such thing contemplated by the Constitution; members of the Cabinet were to be called on for advice respecting the affairs of their own departments. The President must show that he eyer called on Mr. Stanton for a written opinion, or that he had given him an order which he had disobeyed.

Senator Conkling inquired if the counsel proposed to prove that General Sherman had advised the President to procure a change in any particular way.

Mr. Stanbery replied in the negative; witness had only avaryessed an onition.

Mr. Stanbery replied in the negative; witness had only expressed an opiniou as to the advisability of such a change. Mr. Evarts said it was not mérely a question of having committed a violation of law which was punishable in another court by so small a penalty as six cents fine, or a few days imprisonment, but it was a question of the commission of an impeachable offence, punishable by deposition from the highest office, which question, all evidence relating to the motive was of the most vital importance.

Mr. Bingham held that the rules of evidence were the same on the frial of a beggar or of a President.

Mr. Evarts interrupted, to say he had, in his remarks, supposed the President.

Mr. Evarts interrupted, to say be had, in his remarks, supposed the President to be on trial for a petty offense, and repelled the insinuation that he would mete out justice according to rank.

Mr. Bingham continued in an earnest appeal against the admission of the testimony, and at the conclusion, the yeas and nays were taken, which resulted 15 yeas to 35 mays, so it was not admitted.

Mr. Johnson offered a question, whether before the removal Mr. Stanton had advised the President that he should be removed and replaced?

The Managers declined to cross examine, and the Court took a recess at 2:10.

On re-assembling, N. J. Meigs, clerk of the District Supreme Court, testified that he had affixed the seal to the warrant for the arrest of General Thomas, about 2 o'clock on the morning of the 22d of February. Mr. Pile, of Missouri, brought it to him at his house. In answer to Mr. Butler, he said he had been called on at such hours before in cases of pressing necessity.

Mr. Stanbery then offered to put in evidence the warrant and affidavit of Mr. Stanton on which it was issued.

Mr. Butler objected to its reception.

Mr. Evarts said they related to the same subject on which the Managers had introduced the testimony, and that the President's counsel intended to show that he took advantage of the proceedings commenced by Mr. Stanton as the speediest method of bringing the question before the Supreme Court.

Mr. Butler argued that the effect of introducing these papers would be to open up new regions of controversy irrelevent to the case.

Mr. Stanbery referred to the fact that the declarations of General Thomas had been admitted as the declarations of the President to prove his design in employing force, and went to recte the circumstances attending the discharge of Gen. Thomas, which he said they would show was in order to prevent the President from testing the question. The evidence would also show that Gen. Thomas was not regarded as a great criminal by those who procured his arrest.

Mr. Butler rejoined, when the Chief Justice ruled that the warrant and affi-

MALTA, April 12.-Admiral Farragut Interests the President, said he, offered witness the position as Secretary ad interim. Witness asked the President why he did not have a case made up by his lawyers, so as to bring about a change without involving witness, an officer in the army, in the matter. The President replied that it could not be done, but if it could, Stanton's case could not stand an hour.

The question was then asked by Mr. Stanbery, "Have you answered as to what occurred on both occasions?"

Important Order of Gen. Meade Respecting Elections.

ATLANTA, GA, April 11.—An important order was promulgated to-day, by Major Gen. Meade, relative to the approaching election in this place. The General says:

First, That as numerous resignations of sheriffs in Georgia are tendered on the eve of an important election, when there is no time to make new appointments, such resignations will not be accepted. Sheriffs who have been so long in office, at the suffrance of the Commanding General, will not be permitted to resign until after the election, and the faithful performance of their duties will be required under pain of trial by a military commission.

Second, As many jelectors are necessarily dependent upon another class for employment to earn their daily bread for their families, and as numerous complaints have been made that such laborers are to be intimidated from voting for fear of loss of employment, the 'employers are forbidden to control the voting of laborers by threats of discharge, or by other oppressive means, and they are told that any offence of
